A.G. Holley Hospital is celebrating its sixtieth anniversary this year. Built in Lantana, Florida in 1950, it was first named the Southeast Tuberculosis Hospital. At that time, the hospital was one of four built in Florida. It remains as this nation’s last original tuberculosis sanatorium continuing to operate and dedicate itself solely to the care of patients with TB. A.G. Holley’s mission is to treat and cure the State’s most difficult cases of TB; those that cannot be cured by traditional methods in the community. The hospital admits over 100 such patients each year, assuring the cure rate of more than 93%, including those with drug resistant strains of TB. A.G. Holley not only saves the lives of its patients, but also protects vulnerable citizens in the community from becoming infected.

Join us as we celebrate …

… It is a signal honor to dedicate this Southeast Florida State Sanatorium to the cause of humanity; and against this great scourge, we will carry on, SO HELP US GOD!

Quote from the address of Supreme Court Justice B. K. Roberts at the dedication of Southeast Florida State Sanatorium. Lantana, Florida, July 16, 1950.
